Class of '60

This is truly an eleventh hour class agent letter. It is also the only letter I have gotten off to you this year. I've had some health issues which involved two stents, a pace-maker, cardiac rehab, 65 pound weight loss and on-going cardio workouts. I came out on top of this one which was a real wakeup call for me. I am sure many of you have had your own wake up calls. I think we can all thank medical science and its advances.

I mentioned the eleventh hour above; it is indeed that time for making a contribution to the Wabash annual fund before the deadline of June 30, 2012. I encourage you to get in your gift to Wabash if you have already not done so. You can mail it in, phone it in or do it on the web – www.wabash.edu; just follow the prompts. The College needs our continued support. It is a well-managed place as evidenced by the recent communication from the Chairman of the Board. These are difficult financial times, but the College has navigated these rough seas very well. Alumni support has been an important element of the College's sound financial position. We have a responsibility to keep Wabash strong and fulfilling its mission of educating young men.

I hope this letter finds you well, and I shall try to be a better correspondent in the year ahead.

Sincerely,

Charlie
