Wabash College Athletics

I am sure many of you are aware that the Wabash College Athletics teams have been having a tremendous fall and winter sports season this year. The football team had an undefeated regular season winning the NCAC conference title and automatic invitation to the division III playoffs. The team was able to extend their record to 12-0 with wins in the first 2 rounds of the playoffs before falling to University of St. Thomas in the Division III quarterfinals. The victory over DePauw to retain the Monon Bell makes it seven in a row which ties a record for the all time most consecutive victories for Wabash in the series. Next year at home the Little Giants will be going for the record of 8 wins in a row over the Dannies, sounds like a great opportunity for everyone to reunite on campus to us, what about you?

In addition to that the Wabash Cross Country team had another incredible season as well. At the NCAC conference championship, the cross country team came in as runner up for the conference title. They then followed up that impressive performance by taking first place in the Great Lake Regional championship for the 3rd consecutive year. This then qualified them for the division III Cross Country Championship where they finished in 8th place in the nation which is the highest finish for the Red Pack since 1995.

Now that winter is upon the basketball and swimming season are in full swing and looking to improve on their performance from last year. Also the wrestling team is back in action and looking to make it back to nationals in wrestling where they finished 3rd last year as a team. Currently the team is ranked 9th in the nation in 2 of the 3 national rankings and 14th in the 3rd format. The team is led by 2 time national champion, Riley Lefever, who is currently ranked #1 in the nation in the 184lb weight class. If the team is wrestling anywhere near you this winter, it might be worth your time going out to support these talented Little Giants.

All of this information and much more including team schedules can be found on the Wabash College website. These athletes are all great representatives of the college and would love to have support from the alumni. So even if you don't live in the area you might check to see which teams will be traveling to compete somewhere close and get out to support them on the road. WABASH ALWAYS FIGHTS!
