

It has already been an exciting June as many alums turned out for the second largest Big Bash in history, with 376 alumni signing the big book. As we make our way into the summer, we have a few important things we want to make sure you know about.

Annual Fund Deadline is June 30! We are less than two weeks away now from this fiscal year's annual fund deadline. Our class has had a pretty solid participation rate this year – THANKS, seriously! You are making an investment in your own credentials and making a tangible difference in the future of another guys who is in the shoes you occupied 15-20 years ago. If you were curious if there was a better time than another for making an annual donation (as opposed to a recurring monthly), pre-June 30 is it. Click here to make it happen.

NAWM Launches Career Alliances. The NAWM Board is making an effort to get alumni in similar career fields talking to each other and to current students. It's called Wabash Career Alliances and it's a new way to build your personal network and help a current student at the same time. Career alliances being rolled out over the next year include: Healthcare, Finance, Sales/Marketing, IT, Telecom, and Law Enforcement. Know a classmate who might be a good fit? Think you might be a good fit yourself? Contact Tom Runge (runget@wabash.edu) in the Alumni Office for more information.

I received an update from Michael Czerweic:

I just read the most recent class letter and I have an update. I just self-published my second novel on Amazon.com. It's called "It's All in the Details". It's set at an all-male school in central Indiana called Wabash. It is a complete work of fiction and I have probably added places that don't really exist, but I figured that I might as well set a novel there since it's such an incredible environment. I am already at work on the second novel in the series which will also be set at Wabash.

My first novel was called "20 Years Worth of Time"

Thanks,

Michael Czerwiec II

I'm sure more of you have updates – please feel free to share them. I would also encourage anyone who is so motivated to take on our Facebook page or any other communication venues of choice to continue to share info and keep our class community alive. The letters are not a sacred cow, so while I will continue to push information out, best case scenario is for a free-flow of information about you all, and shared by you all.

Thx!
