Dear Friends:

Nine years ago, after hearing President Ford ring Caleb Mills' bell, we began our journey as Wabash men. Look at us now: husbands, fathers, leaders, and explorers.

Last Saturday, President White rang that same bell – that has rung in more than 25,000 'loyal sons' – for more than 250 Wabash freshmen. Wabash will continue to help these men become Wabash men. Through their actions, these students will help Wabash become an even better college.

We believe in Wabash and its ability to transform lives. The mothers and fathers of the 250 freshmen believe that, too. So do you. Wabash does that to you. It provides opportunities to believe.

Just recently, I was walking with friends in Chicago, and a woman, seeing my Wabash t-shirt, asked if I had graduated from Wabash College. I said yes. She then shared her Wabash story about her son, Jake Thomas '09 <http://www2.wabash.edu/blog/ondeckcircle/2009/05/>. I had just read in Wabash Magazine about Jake's baseball career at Wabash. Wabash allows those moments, but we create the possibilities from them.

From a freshmen tutorial about fly-fishing at http://www2.wabash.edu/blog/frt_flyfishing_montana/ to teaching excellence, http://www.wabash.edu/news/displaystory.cfm?news_ID=7227 we invite you to join us in creating those opportunities.

As Davis Hull '04 shares, "Wabash made me who I am. I came to Wabash a boy with a small time view of the world, and Wabash made me a man and gave me a global of view of things. Wabash has hooked me up with internships, business deals and even my current job. So I feel it is my duty to give Wabash back its commission for making me who I am today."

Join Davis in supporting Wabash. Let's show our strength. Be part of the story.

Wabash Always Fights,
