TEACHING EXPERIENCE

Fields

- World and Comparative
I teach both parts of a world history survey—“from the cooling of the earth to the warming of the earth”, as someone once described it—as well as upper level seminars on focused global and comparative topics.
- Traditional Europe, 1000-1800
“Traditional Europe” is a term I borrow from Warren Hollister; it stresses the continuities between the medieval and early modern halves of a coherent period that I research and teach in terms of those continuities.
- Pre-modern Military
My most common topical focus within the above periods and methodologies, this can cover anything from ancient to Napoleonic warfare, though I concentrate on issues surrounding comparative studies of warfare and warrior elites, and on naval warfare.
- Philosophy of History, Historiography

Courses Taught (selected)

- Intro level courses: The World to 1500; The World since 1500; Cultures and Traditions, an all-college readings and discussion course taught to all sophomores at Wabash College; Freshman Tutorial: Sword and Sorcery, on fantasy literature
- Mid-level surveys: Europe, 400-1450; Europe, 1400-1800; The European Transformation, 1000-1800; European Military History, 1000-1800
- Upper level seminars: Philosophy and Craft of History; Medieval Warfare; The Military Revolution, 1500-1800; Women and Gender in Early Modern Europe; Naval History, 1000-1800; The Crusades; Byzantium; Zen and the Samurai; Anglo-Norman Realm; Angevin Empire; Comparative European and Japanese Feudalism; War and Warriors in the World of the 12th Century; Communications Technology and Culture from Ancient Times to the Present, et al.
