WHY WABASH?

Wabash College asks young men the most important question they will ever be asked: What kind of man do you want to be? We then make an institutional commitment to help every Wabash student develop his own answer to this life-changing question by blending an intimate liberal arts education with our culture that emphasizes personal responsibility, resilience, and reflection.

A RIGOROUS LIBERAL ARTS EDUCATION

Think for yourself — that's the Wabash way. Students will learn how to think anywhere, anytime, about anything. We're committed to the virtues of a broad academic experience, so students will take courses in language, literature, art, science, history, philosophy, mathematics, the works. It starts with one of our 24 majors or pre-professional programs.

INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY AND TRUST

Wabash students live by one rule: The student is expected to conduct himself, at all times, both on and off the campus, as a gentleman and a responsible citizen.

A PERSONAL CONTEXT TO TEACHING AND LEARNING

The College seeks to cultivate qualities of character and leadership in students by developing not only their analytic skills, but also sensitivity to values, and judgment and compassion required of citizens living in a difficult and uncertain world.

ACCESSIBLE FACULTY

Wabash's faculty is nationally recognized for excellence and accessibility. And in class, professors will expect students to know their stuff. They won't let them slack off or fail. Professors will become mentors and students' biggest supporters. Young men emerge from Wabash with the intellectual groundwork to succeed in any career.

UNMATCHED FACILITIES

Wabash boasts state-of-the-art facilities and equipment in Hays Science Hall — instruments usually reserved for grad students. Our Allen Athletics and Recreation Center is ranked among the nation's finest at any level, and the Schroeder Center for Career Development is ranked in the top 10. Add to that a $24 million investment in student housing.
