Fellow Esteemed Members of the Wabash College Class of 2002:

I hope this correspondence finds you well and successfully living a life you had envisioned for yourself when we first stepped foot on campus back in the fall of 1998. Yes, for each of us, our relationship with Wabash College is nearing three decades; and just as surprisingly, our tenure as alumni is reaching the quarter century mark next year which is why I am reaching out to you today.

A few weeks back, the College contacted me about, among other things, our class's upcoming 25th reunion and the fact that we needed a class agent. With a bit of coaxing, I volunteered to assume class agent responsibilities but am working with the Alumni Office to procure some assistance.

As with any reunion, class participation is paramount. Some of us have stayed closely connected to our classmates, while others may not have spoken to a Wabash friend in years.

But that's part of what makes Wabash unique – and special and good and just a welcoming and friendly place to come home to.

It gives us the chance to reconnect – not simply with where we are today, but with the people and experiences that helped shape who we became.

Our goal is to get as many members of the Class of 2002 back together as possible. And that is going to take all of us.

I'm reaching out to ask for your help as we begin planning what I hope will be an unforgettable weekend in June 2027. We need classmates who are willing to help with everything from contacting and tracking down fellow graduates, to planning events and activities, gathering old photos and memories, spreading the word, and simply encouraging friends to make the trip back to campus.

Most importantly, we need people who will help us answer the question:

“Who do we know that we absolutely have to get there?”

Think about your roommates, fraternity brothers, teammates, friends from your dorm, classmates from your major, and the people you spent countless hours with at Wabash. Think about the guys you haven't seen in years but would love to sit down with again.

Those are the people we want back.

A 25th reunion only happens once. And while the official events will be planned and organized, the success of this reunion will ultimately depend on the willingness of our classmates to reach out to one another and make the effort to come home.

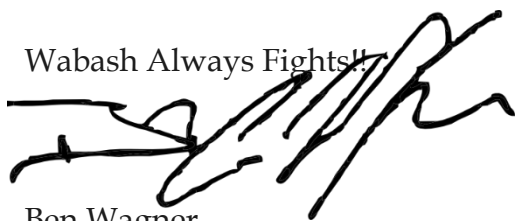

So, if you're willing to help—even in a small way—please let us know. We would love to build a reunion committee made up of classmates who can help us reconnect with as many members of the Class of 2002 as possible.

And if you're not interested in helping with the planning, that's perfectly fine, too. Just save the date, start thinking about who you'd like to see, and plan on being there.

Twenty-five years is a milestone worth celebrating.

Let's get the Class of 2002 back together, tell some old stories, make some new ones, laugh about the things we thought were important in 2002, and spend a weekend remembering why Wabash—and the people we met there—meant so much to us then and continue to do so now as well.

Wabash Always Fights!!
