This is a special Class Letter for members and widows of those who graduated or attended Wabash as the Class of 1963 and. Several of you have asked if there is anything planned before our 60th reunion in 2023 and wondered if something could take place before then.

Rusty, Larry, Bruce and I had lunch last week (with Jim Cumming, too) to think through a few options. Here's what resulted. Wabash organizes the Big Bash weekend to accommodate "official" reunion classes, and anyone is welcome to the events. So any of you can come back on your own and join in the weekend activities. (Friday, May 31, and Saturday, June 1. The information is on the College's website, www.wabash.edu/bigbash.)

If enough of the Class of '63 (that's you) want to come back, we'll get a private room on Saturday night at the Creekside restaurant and set up a hospitality room at one of the hotels nearby. There's the Alumni Chapel sing and picnic lunch earlier that day, and if we have critical mass they'll take our picture with the other reunion classes.

I don't know what "critical mass" is, so would you please send a return email so we can determine if it is a go or not. If we don't do something special for our class, you are still welcome back on campus for the weekend. Please respond either way to me by April 25. I'll let you know the outcome and if anything special results.

I trust all is well, and a normal Class Letter will follow one of these days!

Best,

Alan
