A Message from the Dean of Students

According to our students, two characteristics, among many, make Wabash a truly distinctive college: the level of trust we place in our students and the responsibility we give to them. The single College rule, the Gentleman’s Rule, symbolizes this trust, while the small Student Life staff requires that students assume responsibility for managing much of their daily lives on campus.

We expect our students to act as gentlemen and responsible citizens and to participate daily in defining what our community means by these terms. We expect them to make many important decisions about their academic, residential, personal, and social lives at Wabash. Most students make good decisions most of the time. Occasionally a few students make poor ones. Our students learn from both kinds of decisions, and we hope to guide them to increase the good ones and limit the poor ones.

We believe that students learn best when given responsibility and freedom for making their own decisions. The consequences of those decisions should be the students’. Therefore, for the most part, Wabash will work directly with your son regarding the decisions he makes, unless the matter requires notification of parents. In fact, Federal privacy laws restrict our ability to communicate most matters directly with you.

If you have questions or concerns about your son, please call me at (765-361-6310). Otherwise, the College’s correspondence with you over the next few years is likely to be limited to invitations to social or cultural events, semi-annual tuition bills, the annual invitation to Parents’ Weekend, and that final, glorious invitation to Commencement.

All of us at Wabash look forward to working with your son in the coming year. Thank you in advance for the opportunity we have to support your son in his collegiate pursuits.
Rule of Conduct: The Gentleman’s Rule

Perhaps the most striking aspect of student life at Wabash is the high level of responsibility and expective behavior with personal freedom. Believing that students ought to develop self-reliance and personal responsibility, the College has long prescribed only one rule of conduct:

The student is expected to conduct himself, at all times, both on and off campus, as a gentleman and a responsible citizen.

This simple, yet all-encompassing, rule allows the Wabash student exceptional personal freedom and requires of him commensurate personal responsibility, which together we believe are essential parts of his education and development.

Since Wabash is fundamentally an intellectual community, the faculty has defined the operation of the rule in instances of plagiarism and other academic dishonesty. The first offense results in a penalty determined by the course instructor; the penalty for the second offense is expulsion from the College. In all other behavioral matters, the Dean of Students Office makes the determination of discipline.

Faculty Statement of Principle Concerning Diversity

We, the Faculty of Wabash College, affirm that our community should embrace both diversity and freedom of speech. While in no way wishing to abridge the free exchange of ideas, we believe that comments, written or spoken, and actions that threaten or embarrass people because of their race, gender, religion, occupation, sexual orientation, national origin, physical disability, or ethnic group hurt all of us. Such insensitivity to any individual or group betrays the spirit of the liberal arts. We invite students, staff, and administration to join us in fostering an environment of mutual respect.
A History of Wabash College

Wabash College has educated young men since its founding in 1832, just 11 years after the first settlers arrived in what is now Montgomery County, Indiana. The nine clergymen and laymen who founded Wabash College recognized the need for teachers and for ministers in the wilderness.

Asking God to bless their venture, the founders constructed a building and hired a teacher. Crawfordsville English and Classical High School thus opened its doors to the first class of 12 students taught by Caleb Mills on December 3, 1833, in Forest Hall. Today, Caleb Mills’ bell is rung to welcome each class to Wabash and to mark its Commencement. The original building, Forest Hall, relocated to the north part of campus, is home to the offices of Teacher Education.

A few months after that first class, the young institution became the Wabash Manual Labor College and Teacher’s Seminary and received a charter from the State of Indiana. Although the school was commonly known as Wabash College, it was not until 1851 that the original charter was amended and the name officially changed to Wabash College.

Elihu Baldwin, the first President of the College, was installed in 1835, three years after instruction began. He believed in and championed the liberal arts education which continues to guide the Wabash curriculum.

Speaking of the College in his Inaugural Address, January 29, 1994, Wabash’s 14th president Andrew T. Ford said, “Wabash is not simply a four-year college for men; Wabash is a lifetime experience for men and their families. It is not simply a four-year liberal arts program; Wabash is the beginning of one’s independent life. It is not merely preparation for the real world; Wabash is participation in the real world. It is not rules, regulations, and judicial procedures; Wabash is trust, responsibility, and caring. It is not unique because it is a college for men; Wabash is unique in the candor, rigor, and caring of the classroom experience. Wabash is above all about making men better.”

Today, over 175 years after our founding, Wabash continues to educate young men in the liberal arts tradition. Our graduates leave this campus even better men than when they arrived and go into the world to make it better for all of us.
We, the Faculty of Wabash College, believe in a liberal arts education. We believe that it leads people to freedom, helps them choose worthy goals and shows them the way to an enduring life of the mind. With its ideals in view, we have designed our curriculum according to the following principles:

The graduate in the liberal arts has pondered ideas as they come to him out of the ages of human thought. He has watched their myriad forms in the great works of philosophy, history, theology, mathematics, arts, and literature. He has seen how the natural sciences try to answer the crucial questions of man, and he has himself taken part in their meticulous labor.

He has shared the endeavor of social science to probe the nature of man and the world he builds, and he has practiced its methods of coping with human conflicts and social needs.

In the study of foreign civilizations and people, he has found himself not only the creature of his time and place but a citizen of the world-wide human community.

He has learned to read, to write and to speak clearly and creatively, and he has begun to acquire the skills that will qualify him for increasing leadership in his vocation.

We, the Faculty, believe that these principles are indispensable to the teaching to which we devote our careers. And we believe that to follow them will enable the graduates of Wabash College to judge thoughtfully, act effectively, and live humanely in a difficult world.

Dean’s List
To honor students for outstanding academic achievement, the Dean of the College each semester names to the Dean’s List those students who attain a semester average of at least 3.5.

Phi Beta Kappa
The requirements for election to Phi Beta Kappa at Wabash College are determined by the by-laws of the Wabash Chapter, which consists of Phi Beta Kappa members of the College faculty and staff.

Since 1948 they have permitted the election of not more than one-eighth of the graduating class. The Wabash Chapter, one of the oldest, is not bound by the rule of the United Chapters which permits the election of no more than 10 percent.

It is the normal practice of the Chapter, but not a requirement, to elect the one-eighth of the senior class whose grade averages are highest. The by-laws permit the election of no more than three juniors.

Travel Plans

Before you make travel plans for your son for midsemester breaks or the end of the semester, have your student check his course and exam schedules. Students need to be on campus when classes are in session and are excused only in case of an emergency.

Availability of Records

The Registrar’s Office will not release academic information (transcripts, grade averages, class rank, etc.) electronically (telephone, fax, or e-mail) to any individual, including the student. Requests for such information must be submitted in writing bearing the student’s signature. Faxed requests are acceptable provided they bear the student’s signature. E-mail requests are acceptable if they include an attached request bearing the student’s signature. Electronic signatures are not acceptable.

Please allow two working days for processing of information and transcript requests.

Replacement diplomas will NOT be issued in any name other than that certified (on record) at the time of graduation.

In compliance with Public law 93-380 (Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act), enrolled students may inspect their records in the Registrar’s Office upon written request.

Normal Course Loads

A full-time student carries four, four and one-half, or five course credits each semester. Freshmen require the approval of the Dean of Students to drop to a three-credit load. If the number of credits is less than three, the student is considered part-time, and he may lose his financial aid. Additionally, part-time students are ineligible to participate in intercollegiate athletics and to enroll in the student health and accident plan.

Continuance in College

For students entering in August, 2000, or thereafter, the requirements are as specified below:

- Freshman to sophomore
  - 6 courses and a 1.50 average

- Sophomore to junior
  - 14 courses and a 1.70 average

- Junior to senior
  - 24 courses and a 1.85 average

- To graduate
  - 34 courses and a 2.00 average

A student also must earn three credits toward the degree each semester to continue in the College. A freshman, however, may be retained for his second semester if he earns two credits. The Dean of Students is authorized to grant exceptions to this standard based on judgments of a student’s performance.

Directory Information

FERPA permits Wabash to release, without consent, certain directory information, which includes the Wabash student's name, local, home and cell phone number, e-mail and electronic messaging address, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, class standing, weight and height of members of athletic teams, honors, awards, and scholarships earned, photographs, dates of attendance, degree received, post-graduate plans, and most recent previous educational agency or institution attended. A Wabash student may request that directory information not be released without prior written consent by filing a written statement with the Wabash Registrar two weeks prior to enrollment.
Off-Campus Study

Off-campus experiences provide opportunities for learning and adapting to new environments. Students may spend an academic semester or summer away, or participate in one of the many faculty-led immersion trips. In addition, Wabash has now created a summer program, also led by faculty, that take place in early summer. Quito, Ecuador is the site of an intensive Spanish language program in which students have opportunities to experience the language, culture, literature, environment, and other aspects of the area. Dill Grants are also available for qualified applicants to research topics of interest during the summer.

Wabash has also established the Kenneth Rhys Rudolph Memorial Fund for European Summer Study Abroad. The fund was established by friends and family members to honor the memory of Rudolph, a 2005 cum laude graduate of Wabash, who died in a tragic automobile accident at the age of 23. The Rudolph Fund provides need-blind financial support for a student or students from Wabash who choose to study in a European country during the summer. Wabash students may apply for the scholarship funds to be used in the summer. The Wabash Off-Campus Study Committee will make the awards. For information on how to apply for the Rudolph Memorial Fund, contact David Clapp in the International Studies Office at Wabash.

Students may apply to a wide range of programs. In recent years Wabash students have successfully completed work in such countries as Argentina, Austria, Chile, China, Costa Rico, England, France, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Peru, Scotland, and Spain.

In selecting their program and planning their schedule, students may want to consider pursuing the interdisciplinary International Studies Area of Concentration. This area of concentration requires courses drawn from a variety of disciplines, a language and counts as a minor.

For more details, please check our website at www.wabash.edu/international Counseling
Professional counselors are available on campus, at no additional fee, for students. Services provided are voluntary and confidential to the extent of the law. A parent calling about the welfare of a student, for example, is unable to obtain confidential information without the expressed, written permission of the students.

Counseling Services may range from a brief assessment, to help coping with adjustments to and stresses of college life; from education about substance use, to support for pre-existing issues. At times, with the assistance of the other Health Center staff, we might provide an assessment of a need for acute services or crisis intervention. In some cases, that may require a referral to the student’s primary health coverage for services beyond the scope of our abilities.

The Counseling Center staff is committed to the success and emotional health of our students. The director is Kevin Swain ’83 (MA, NCC, LMFT, LCSW, LMHC) and the assistant is Jamie Douglas. To access services, contact the Center Office in the Chapel at 765-361-6252 or swaimk@wabash.edu or douglasj@wabash.edu. After hours and emergencies, please call (317) 409-3128. (Warning—communication by Email cannot be guaranteed to remain private).

Students are required to live in College housing (residence halls or fraternities) during their freshman and sophomore years. Approximately two-thirds of the student body live in fraternity houses. Each fraternity manages its own internal affairs. Fraternity meals are served in house dining rooms.

Independent students live in one of five residence halls or in College-owned houses. They choose one meal plan: 19 or 15 meals per week (or 10 meals per week for campus-owned houses with kitchens). Independent meals are served in the dining hall in the Sparks Center.

Wabash assumes no responsibility for loss of or damage to the student’s personal property. Each student is encouraged to take appropriate steps to safeguard and insure his property including vehicles or other modes of transportation. PARENTS' HANDBOOK 2011-2012

Financial Aid

The financial aid process measures a family’s ability to contribute to the cost of their student's education from the financial resources available to them at the time that the financial aid applications are completed. Wabash requires families to file two forms: the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and the CSS/PROFILE Application. The expected family contribution subtracted from the cost of education determines the student’s financial need.

Below are listed some sources of financial assistance available to Wabash students. To receive these forms of assistance, a student must be enrolled full-time at Wabash. Aid will be credited to his account in equal amounts each semester.

Each student should make an effort to seek outside awards to meet his college expenses. All sources of assistance should be reported by the student or the awarding organization soon after notification of the award is received.

Since financial aid is awarded annually, students are responsible for filing financial aid forms between January 1 and February 15 each year to determine financial aid eligibility.

Sources of Financial Aid

Wabash grant and merit-based scholarships
Indiana resident grants
Frank O’Bannon Grant Program (Must file FAFSA each year by March 10)
21st Century Scholarship (Must file FAFSA each year by March 10)
Federal Pell Grant, TEACH Grants
Loans—All loans require a separate application/promissory note
Federal Stafford Loan (subsidized & unsubsidized)
Parent Loans for Undergraduate Students (PLUS)
Wabash College Subsidized Loan
ESH—Students receive bi-weekly direct deposit payments as they work an on-campus job. ESH does not appear as a credit on the student’s statement of account unless the student authorizes a payroll deduction that applies to his account.

Outside awards—local, national, corporate, and private agencies
